Esther

This drawing shows someone's life being spared. Do you know whose life it is? This is Esther. What do you know about her? We'll read her story today to find out more.

Prayer

Dear Heavenly Father,

Thank You for again bringing us together to study Your Word in Sunday School. Be with our teacher so that the lesson may be taught to Your glory and with us so that we will listen and learn about the truths of Your Scripture. We ask this in Jesus' name. Amen.

The Story - Esther 1-10 paraphrased

There was a king of Persia named Ahasuerus, also known as Xerxes. He was ruler over 127 provinces from India to Ethiopia. His palace was in Shushan.

Once he made a feast and invited all his officials, nobles, princes and important powers of his kingdom. The feast lasted 180 days and the king showed off his riches and the splendor of his kingdom. Near the end of the feast days he had a special celebration for all his people with much expensive food and drink served in golden vessels. The queen of Persia, Vashti, was commanded to come before the king to show off her beauty to the people. But Queen Vashti refused to come at the king's command and the king was furious. It would be a bad example for others if the wife of the king did not listen to her husband, therefore Queen Vashti was never allowed to come before the king again. A new queen was needed.

A beauty contest was held to find a new queen. Many beautiful, young, unmarried women were brought to the palace including a young Jew named Esther. She had been raised in the house of her cousin, Mordecai. Mordecai worked in the king's palace.

After a year of beauty treatment each young woman was brought before the king. So Esther was taken to King Xerxes and he loved Esther more than all the other women, and so he set the royal crown upon her head and made her queen instead of Vashti.

One day while near the gate of the palace Mordecai overheard a plot to assassinate the king. He told Esther who told the king, and the two gatekeepers who plotted the assassination were hanged. All of this was written down in the history book of the king.

After these things King Xerxes promoted a wicked man named Haman and set him above all the princes. All the king's servants bowed and paid homage to Haman, but Mordecai would not bow or pay homage because he was a Jew and it was forbidden by God. This made Haman very angry and he planned how he might destroy Mordecai and his people, the Jews, who were captives in Persia.

Haman went to the king with his plan and said to the king, "There is a certain people scattered and dispersed among the people in all the provinces of your kingdom; their laws are different from all other people's, and they do not keep the king's laws. Therefore it is not fitting for the king to let them remain. If it pleases the king, let a decree be written that they be destroyed."

So the king took his signet ring from his hand and gave it to Haman saying, "The people are given to you, to do with them as seems good to you."

Haman made the decree that in one year's time all the Jews in the provinces of King Xerxes were to be killed.

When Mordecai learned all that had happened, he tore his clothes in sorrow and put on sackcloth and ashes. All Jews everywhere mourned. Esther was also distressed.

Mordecai asked that Esther go before the king and plead for her people. King Xerxes did not know she was Jewish. It was also dangerous to go before the king without being invited. You would be killed for bothering him unless he held out his golden scepter to you, then you would live.

Esther was afraid to go to the king but Mordecai reminded her that she was a Jew. He also said, "Yet who knows whether you have come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"

Esther said, "Go, gather all the Jews who are present in Shushan, and fast for me for three days. My maids and I will fast likewise. And so I will go to the king, which is against the law; and if I perish, I perish!"

After three days Esther put on her royal robes and went before King Xerxes. So it was, when the king saw Queen Esther she found favor in his sight, and the king held out to Esther the golden scepter. Then Esther went near and touched the top of the scepter.

The king said to her, "What do you wish, Queen Esther? It shall be given to you; up to half the kingdom!"

Esther answered, "If it pleases the king, let the king and Haman come today to the banquet that I have prepared."

The king and Haman went to Queen Esther's feast. Again the king asked what Esther requested. She asked that they again come to a banquet the next day and she would then tell her request.

Haman felt great pride that he was important to the king and queen but later when he saw Mordecai who did not bow down to him he was angry. He planned to ask the king to have Mordecai killed and even had a gallows built that would hang Mordecai one day.

But that night the king could not sleep. He commanded that the book about his history be read to him. There he heard and was reminded of how Mordecai saved his life from the two gatekeepers who were planning to kill him.

The king said, "What honor or dignity has been bestowed on Mordecai for this?"

The servants said that nothing had been done to honor him. So the king asked Haman, "What shall be done for the man whom the king delights to honor?"

Haman, thinking the king was talking about him, said, "Let a royal robe be brought which the king has worn, and a horse on which the king has ridden be delivered to the man. Then parade him on horseback through the city square, and proclaim before him: 'Thus shall it be done to the man whom the king delights to honor!'"

The king said, "Hurry, take the robe and the horse, as you have suggested, and do this for Mordecai the Jew."

So Haman took the robe and the horse, arrayed Mordecai and led him on horseback through the city square. Afterward Mordecai went back to the king's gate. But Haman hurried to his house, mourning and with his head covered.

Later the king and Haman went to dine with Queen Esther. She now told the king her request, "If I have found favor, O king, please spare my life and the lives of my people. For we are to be destroyed because of the wishes of someone."

King Xerxes answered, "Who is he who would dare presume in his heart to do such a thing?"

Esther said, "The enemy is this wicked Haman!"

Then the king saw the gallows and said, "Hang Haman on the gallows!"

So they hanged Haman on the gallows that he had prepared for Mordecai. On that day King Xerxes promoted Mordecai to the position Haman had held.

Esther then went again to the king and he again held out the golden scepter for her. She said, "If it pleases the king, and if I have found favor in his sight let it be written to take back the letters sent by Haman ordering the death of the Jews."

Then King Xerxes said to Queen Esther and Mordecai the Jew, "You yourselves write a decree concerning the Jews, as you please, in the king's name, for whatever is written in the king's name and sealed with the king's signet ring no one can revoke."

So the king's scribes were called at that time and it was written that the Jews were permitted to gather together and protect their lives and to kill all the forces of any people or province that would assault them. The Jews had joy and gladness, a feast and a holiday.

When the time came for the enemies of the Jews to carry out the order of Haman the Jews gathered together and defeated their enemies, killing thousands. All the officials of the provinces even helped the Jews defeat their enemies and followed the order given by Mordecai and Esther. Haman's ten sons were also hanged.

Mordecai was great in the king's palace, and his fame spread throughout all the provinces. A special day of celebration was established for the Jews to remember this time when God spared His people from destruction. It was called Purim.

Outer Aim - God, through Esther, saved Israel from destruction so that the promised Messiah could come from Judah.

Hymn & Prayer- Worship Supplement 2000 #785

Children of the heav'nly Father
Safely in His bosom gather;
Nestling bird nor star in heaven
Such a refuge e'er was given.

God His own doth tend and nourish;
In His holy courts they flourish.
From all evil things He spares them;
In His mighty arms He bears them.

Neither life nor death shall ever
From the Lord His children sever;
Unto them His grace He showeth,
And their sorrows all He knoweth.

Though He giveth or He taketh,
God His children ne'er forsaketh;
His the loving purpose solely
To preserve them pure and holy. Amen.
